- Daniel is very knowledgeable in the subject matter and I highly enjoyed his heuristic approach. I'm the type who likes to try to figure things out without having been shown the answer step-by-step. However, this only works when there are students who come with some degree or preparation. Regardless, Daniel tried his best to adjust his explanations in such a way that students would understand. His examples and explanations were always clear and insightful. Additionally, there were times where he'd come off a bit standoffish towards students, but perhaps it's because he's naturally serious and he didn't mean to come off that way. When I would ask him questions or small-talk, he would be friendly, smiling and even laughing. It is rare to find people who try to encourage students to problem-solve and think. I would highly recommend Daniel as a TA for any class!
